Not all documents are required for all employees. Absence of a particular document does not indicate that it is missing. Personnel records may be legally maintained in paper or electronic format. Human Resources utilizes numerous filing systems, including but not limited to, the main personnel file, the medical file, the I-9 file, and the Employer-Employee Relations file which are maintained separately. We give special consideration to where and how our files are maintained, limiting access to only those with a need to know and protecting applicants and employees from discrimination, identity theft, breach of privacy, and Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) violations.

- * Indicates that the document is kept in a separate file from the main Personnel File
-  Indicates that the document is kept in a separate file because/if it contains medical information
- ^ Indicates if criteria is met
